Problem

AT HOME COFFEE IS BAD!

01 POWDER COFFEE

Many people continue to drink poor-quality, bitter coffee which lacks the true flavor of real coffee—it is just like using milk powder instead of fresh milk.

Naturally coffee isn't that bitter. However, brewing it with heat can extract unwanted oils from the beans, leading to the formation of acidic compounds and bitterness.

02 COFFEE BREWING IS TIME CONSUMING

Brewing quality coffee at home demands proper skill and time. It is also expensive when investing in coffee machines, which often require regular maintenance and can be challenging to operate.

Traction and Timeline

Competition

Currently, Brown Rush Coffee and The Simple Brew are two emerging startups in the cold brew coffee concentrate market; however, they have a limited presence and don't do specialty coffee. Hence, at this time we do not face any direct mainstream competition.

In the direct-to-consumer (D2C) space, potential competition may arise from Theka Coffee, as they begin to enter the concentrate market. Additionally, larger brands like Starbucks or Blue Tokai could pose competition if they decide to expand their offerings to include concentrates.

What will truly set us apart from larger brands in future will be our unwavering focus on specialty coffee concentrate, not a mere part of portfolio.

Proven Hit in the West

There are many successful brands like Javy, Chameleon Cold-Brew, and Stōk. Even Starbucks in 2020 had introduced its own cold brew concentrate

Target Market

Premium Instant Coffee Drinkers

Now is the ideal time to transform instant coffee drinkers, such as those who prefer Davidoff or Nescafé Gold, into passionate coffee enthusiasts with our product.

Specialty Coffee Drinkers

Sometimes, even the most dedicated specialty coffee drinkers have to switch to instant coffee for convenience. Despite their love for gourmet brews, busy schedules demands a quick coffee, so why powdered coffee when they now have specialty coffee, instantly

Trujoe's occupies a position between premium instant coffee and specialty coffee brewing at home.

Overall Growth Plan

Stage 1

Branding, D2C, Tricity Offline Market Capture and R&D

To scale our online direct-to-consumer (D2C) strategy in India, we will create attractive design and packaging to drive customers to our website or Amazon. We will also distribute retail products in Tricity's upscale supermarkets and along D2C. Our focus includes extending shelf life, reducing costs, and enhancing automation.

*Note: The current shelf life is 5 weeks.

Stage 2

Nationwide Expansion online

Once we have achieved the shelf life, we will scale through quick commerce like Zepto, Blinkit etc

Stage 3

Tier 1 cities offline expansion

This is the most powerful phase in our system as retail is a true revenue and profit booster once we know the product is hit online.

Right to Win!

01

Validated Product with Market Traction

- Successfully developed MVP with a 1-month shelf life concentrate
- Positive customer feedback and initial sales confirm strong demand with repeat orders with no marketing
- A mainstream cafe 'Moira' and a renowned supermarket in panchkula 'Jai Maa MDC-5' are regular customers

02

Growing Specialty Coffee Market

India's premium coffee segment expanding rapidly with consumers shifting to convenient, high-quality options

03

Unique Focus on Cold Brew

Trujoe's specializes in cold brew products especially concentrate—a fast-growing, under-served segment in India's specialty coffee market. Our product's superior taste and convenience position us ahead of traditional brands.

Founder - Abhay Sharma

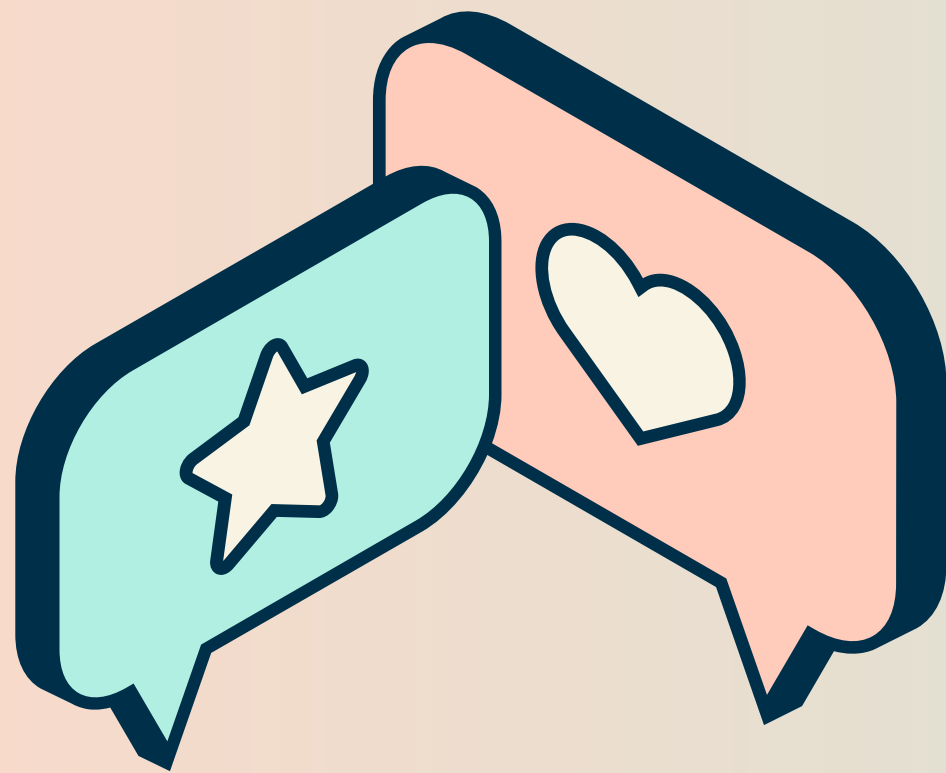

My journey into coffee began by noticing a market gap for high-quality but convenient options. This led me to become a true coffee enthusiast.

Hence now developing a cold brew coffee brand focused on quality and innovation.

I currently moonlight as a developer at an American fintech company with five years of experience in software development.
